EXTENSION TALK REVIVED AGAIN

Charles L. Henry, President of I. & C., Says it is no More Definite Than Ever.

DIRECTORS TO TRAVEL ROUTE

This is Cause For Old Rumor That I. & C. Will be Extended to Cincinnati.

The talk of extension of the Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction Company eastward to Cincinnati has been revived in the Brookville papers which are very anxious that the extension be made through that city. Charles L. Henry, president of the company, said this morning that the date of the proposed extension was as indefinite as it ever had been. Mr. Henry said, however, that it is the intent of the company to extend the line as soon as possible.

According to Mr. Henry the extension rumor is current again due to the fact that the directors of the company and the president are planning a trip over the three proposed routes in automobiles. Mr. Henry suggested to the directors at their last meeting that they make the trip over the routes as soon as the weather is favorable.

Mr. Henry has been over all of the routes a number of times and is very familiar with them. The purpose of the trip is to familiarize the directors with the country and towns through which the traction line may pass when the extension is once started.

Mr. Henry says that nothing will be done with a view of making the extension until conditions are more settled. The extension could not be made without the sale of securities and just at present the opportunities for such a sale are not very good, according to Mr. Henry. As President Henry expressed it, "To make an extension at this time would be like butting our heads up against a stone wall."

Brookville is awake to the advantage to be gained from the extension of the traction line through that town. A meeting of the citizens was held there recently and a committee was appointed to go over the route with the I. & C. officials and supply whatever information might be asked.

There are three routes which are considered by the I. & C. Traction Company. One is to extend the line from this city to Brookville, through Harrison, Ohio, and into Cincinnati. Another is to build the line from Connersville through Hamilton, and the third is to extend the line from Greensburg through Brookville and Harrison, O. On two of the routes Rushville would be in direct connection with Cincinnati.

HELD ANNUAL PIG ROAST

Knights Templar Enjoyed Big Feed Last Night.

The Knights Templar held their annual pig roast last night after conferring the Red Cross degree. About 50 Knights attended the session which was the first of the season. The pig was donated by Will McMillin of Union township and the Sir Knights tendered him a vote of thanks. After the banquet a number of toasts were given and Mr. Manlove, an impersonator from Milton, gave a brief program.

WEATHER.

Fair tonight and probably Saturday. Cooler tonight.

SMASH-UP AT CARTHAGE

Two Buggies Collide and Two Persons Are Hurt.

A buggy in which Lawrence Hargrove and Roy Linscott rode collided with the buggy occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Dave Tuttle in Carthage and one wheel was smashed. The buggy in which the men were riding was overturned and Linscott was dragged several feet when his legs caught in the lines. He was unconscious for a time but no serious results from his injuries are anticipated. Dave Tuttle was thrown under his buggy and sustained a badly sprained ankle. Mrs. Tuttle, her infant in her arms leaped from the buggy the instant the crash came and fainted a few minutes later as a result of the shock she received.

SHERIFF BEBOUT MAKES AN ARREST

James A. Morgan, Ticket Agent at Lewisville, Faces Assault and Battery and Provoke Charges.

TAKEN TO HENRY COUNTY

James A. Morgan, ticket agent for the T. H. I. & E. traction company in Lewisville was arrested yesterday by Sheriff Clata Bebout on a warrant issued from Henry county charging him with provoke and intoxication. Morgan lives about one and a half miles south of Lewisville, in this county and was turned over to the Henry county authorities by Sheriff Bebout. It is alleged that Morgan got on a little spree last Sunday while working at the traction station and provoked several patrons of the line. It is said that his conduct was very disgraceful and several fights were narrowly averted. It is not known who swore out the affidavits for his arrest.

WILL ATTEND MEET AT ATLANTIC CITY

Charles Henry and Oscar Lively Will go For Session of Electric Railway Association.

SIDE TRIPS ARE PLANNED

Charles L. Henry, president of the Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction company, and Oscar Lively, superintendent, will attend the annual meeting of the American Electric Railway Association which will be held at Atlantic City, the week of October ninth. Mr. Henry and Mr. Lively will go by way of Toronto, Canada, in order to inspect a block signal system which is being used there. They will stop at Niagara Falls for a short visit. After the convention most of the traction men who attend the annual meeting will go to New York to inspect the new Pennsylvania station. Traction men have a special interest in it since electricity is used in operating the machinery at the station.

FINED BY SQUIRE.

Jesse Ridout of Jersey City was fined five dollars and costs this morning by Squire Kratzer for assault and battery. His fine was stayed. The charge against Ridout was preferred by his wife, who alleged that he came home drunk and beat her.

POLIOMYELITIS FATAL TO GIRL

The Little Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Peck of Orange Township Dies Unexpectedly.

DOCTOR RACES WITH DEATH

Demise Yesterday is First Fatality Due to Infantile Paralysis in This Section of State.

Without warning and rather unexpectedly, Little Lola Peck, the nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Peck of Orange township died of infantile paralysis yesterday at noon. The disease that is almost fatal to children was discovered last Saturday. Previous to that several animals on the farm had died with symptoms of the disease.

The death is the first to occur in this section of the State from poliomyelitis and its suddenness brings added terror to the new disease. Fifteen minutes before her death the little girl was in almost the full enjoyment of life, and the end was due to a sudden relapse. She retained consciousness till within five minutes of her last breath. The instant relapse came, the family physician, Dr. G. I. Inlow, of Blue Ridge, was summoned; but he lost in the race against death as the little girl had passed away five minutes before he arrived at the house.

Dr. Inlow had left the bedside of the afflicted child at nine o'clock yesterday morning after paying his regular daily visit. At that time her symptoms were more favorable for a recovery than at any time since she became ill one week ago yesterday while she was at school. All morning the little girl had been unusually cheerful and she talked to her relatives in a most interesting manner.

They little dreamed that the shadow of the death angel was even then over her couch. She had almost entirely regained the use of her limbs and the paralysis seemed to be gradually departing from her body. She said yesterday morning that she was not suffering in the least and the parents and the attending physician had every hope for her recovery. The suddenness of her taking away has prostrated her parents. Besides the parents, she leaves a brother.

RUSH COUNTY NATIVE DIES

Funeral Services of Mrs. Jonathan Miller Who Expired in Connersville, to be Here.

AT THE EAST HILL CHAPEL

Deceased is Survived by Three Sons and a Sister—Born in the Flatrock Neighborhood.

The funeral services of Mrs. Jonathan Miller, age seventy-eight, a native of Rush county, who died at her home in Connersville yesterday, will be held in the chapel at East Hill cemetery tomorrow afternoon at one o'clock, conducted by the Rev. W. F. Smith of Connersville. A short service will be held in Connersville before the body is brought to this city. Mrs. Miller's demise was due to apoplexy. The Connersville News adds concerning her life:

Mrs. Miller's health had not been perfect since last winter, when she was severely ill for a short time, threatened with apoplexy. Of late, however, her health had been as good as usual. She was up and about, according to the habits of a very active life, until Wednesday afternoon. While sitting on the veranda, at her home, she became ill, and not long afterward went to bed. Friends and relatives gathered, but early Wednesday night she seemed better and it was believed that her illness was nearly past. Near one o'clock on Thursday morning her husband, who was by her side, noticed a peculiar sound in her breathing, and a few minutes later she passed away. That hour marked the close of a singularly active and useful life.

Mrs. Miller's maiden name was Charlotte Armstrong. She was born in Rush county April 11, 1833. In her young womanhood she became the wife of Charles M. Griffin, also of Rush county, and they began house-keeping on a farm in the Flatrock neighborhood. Three sons, Charles M., Albert R. and David E. Griffin, were born to their union, and all survive. In 1865, the family moved from Rush county to the Griffin farm north of the city. Four years later the husband and father passed away. The responsibilities of the farm management and of the rearing of the children devolved upon the widow, and this heavy task she performed so cheerfully and so well that the recollection of it causes her name to be revered by all who know the circumstances.

Twenty-seven years ago the deceased became the wife of Mr. Miller, and has since lived in this city. Until last winter she was remarkably free from sickness. It was her earnest wish that she might not have any lingering illness and this wish was gratified, though the suddenness of her departure comes as a blow of sorrow to those who were near to her.

Besides the relatives already mentioned Mrs. Miller leaves one sister, Mrs. Rebecca Conner of this city.

BILLS ANNOUNCE INDIGNATION MEET

Call Citizens to Attend Public Gathering in Court House Assembly Room This Evening.

TO CONSIDER COUNCIL'S ACT

Handbills announcing an "Indignation Meeting" for the court house assembly room were distributed over the streets today calling the citizens of Rushville to attend the public meeting to be held under the auspices of the Rushville Retail Merchants Association in the court house assembly room this evening. The meeting was called to consider steps to take to persuade the city council to change its verdict in regard to its refusal to furnish water for fire protection to the Rushville Furniture Company which has erected a forty thousand dollar factory in the Stewart & Tompkins addition. Petitions will be presented and if sanctioned by the meeting, will be circulated for signers to petition the council to give the company fire protection.

JAMES E. WATSON
GUEST AT BANQUET

Gathering is Held at Fort Harrison by "High and Dry" Club of Terre Haute Today.

L. W. HENLEY IS TOASTMASTER

James E. Watson was one of the guests at the fish fry given by the "High and Dry" club of Terre Haute at Fort Harrison, five miles up the Wabash river from Terre Haute today. L. W. Henley, a Rush county man, who was born and reared in Ripley township, acted as toastmaster at the banquet. He is managing editor of the Terre Haute Star. Joseph G. Cannon, former speaker of the National House; Judge W. J. Henley of Indianapolis, formerly of this city; former Governor W. T. Durbin of Anderson; James P. Goodrich of Winchester, former Republican State chairman; Mayor Lew Shank and former Mayor Chas. A. Bookwalter of Indianapolis; Charles Landis of Delphi; Charles S. Hernly of New Castle; Col. E. P. Thayer of Greenfield, and C. E. Hitch of Paris, Ill., United States Marshal, are among the guests at the banquet. The trip was made from Terre Haute to Ft. Harrison by boat. J. R. Finkelstein of Terre Haute entertained the visiting politicians at dinner last evening.

HOOSIERS GET
PAWPAW SCENT

Arrival of "Hoosier Bananas" in New York Herald Office is Occasion For Excitement.

T. J. GERAGHTY DESCRIBES IT

Advent of Pawpaws in Broadway Causes Newspaper Comment—Rushville in Fore Again.

Tom J. Geraghty received the good old Rush county pawpaws in New York City. They created a sensation that would make a vaudeville star envious. Here's what he says about their advent in Broadway:

Certainly appreciate your shipment of pawpaws as I realize the enormous work entailed in getting them here to me as you did.

Nothing short of an explosion of a bomb in the editorial and reportorial rooms of the Herald could have occasioned more excitement than the introduction of that crate of Hoosier bananas.

The interest attending the opening of the crate was as intense as that usually manifested at a badger fight. Indeed, not a few of the men—some of whom had never even heard of pawpaw fully expected a wild animal to leap from the straw and leaves when the lid came off. But in a few minutes the office was strewn with seeds and skins and the air was full of talk of pawpaws and Indiana. Some of the boys so relished the fruit that they took "several helpings" and the result was that I did not even have one left to take home to my family.

Many of the men, with families, smuggled one or more of the pawpaws away and took them to their homes to exhibit them to their children and their wives. The fame of the pawpaw in the eastland is assured, thanks to you fellows back there, and Rushville, Ind., is again to the fore, in box car letters in blase New York.

After looking over the red printed label bearing the business address of Alec Williams, I had a difficult time convincing the fellows here that Alec was not the real thing in the pawpaw king line.

But best of all the pawpaws revived many pleasant recollections for at least five or six men, who when reminded of their boyhood days were frank to confess Indiana as their birthplace, or the birthplace of their wife. Three of the men who asked me personally for a few pawpaws to take home mentioned the fact that their wives were Hoosiers.

"You know I married a Mitchell, Indiana girl, and she will be tickled to death to get some of these," said one of the fellows.

No, I did not know he had married an Indiana girl at all. Another fellows told me his wife was from Ft. Wayne, while another said he married in Richmond.

But the greatest surprise was when one of the big editors, named Payne, toddled out of his front office and said:

"I just got a scent of pawpaws and learn from the boys that you have a shipment here. I would like to have a few to take home. I never knew you were from Indiana, and from Rushville, until tonight. That's fine for that makes us neighbors. You see my wife and I hail from Fayette county, where we were born on farms. I have been to Connersville often, and to Rushville many times at the old political rallies, and like celebrations when I was a boy and sparking the girls. Came near marrying a Rush county girl."

Daffydil Doings Down In Dippy Dell

It was the practice hour for the "Old Folks Concert." After the participants had finished learning their do, ra, me's the director turned their attention to "The Old Oaken Bucket." He pointed out that the tin can has replaced "the Old Oaken Bucket" to a certain extent in this day and age, but that it is still a good old wagon. James E. Watson objected to fun being made of the good old song, and B. F. Miller said that he liked his water out of a tin can, but that the bucket was all right even at that. Verne Norris, singing tenor on the right end of the black quartet tried a high note in "The Star Spangled Banner" and strained a vocal chord so that he limped noticeably when driving his machine from his farm to the court house this morning. It was raining terribly outside and the minds of the company just could not be concentrated on the work at hand. When the rain drops began to patter sweetly on the court house roof it restored the equanimity of the gathering and all was running along smoothly, including the scale, when a wet and bedraggled woman appeared at the door. She was a sorry sight. When a member of the company was about to question her she spoke out plainly and thusly:

"If the city council is a church organization, is Dr. Charles Parson?"

Bang! Bang! It's the Tenth Infantry, boys. We're saved.

Don't Kindle A Fire Every Morning This Winter

Ever get up on a cold morning and find the fire in your Base Burner all dead around the edges--a dim red spot of fire in the center? The house was chilly, and it was a mighty disagreeable job to get up a good fire with only a few live coals to start it with.

You will never have any trouble like that with a FAVORITE BASE BURNER. The Favorite will hold fire longer and more evenly than any other Base Burner made. It will keep the temperature in your home even, day and night. When you wake in the morning your house will be as warm as when you went to bed.

You'll find the reason in the flues and perfect fitting of the Favorite. Every door, joint and frame is paper tight.

The Favorite has held fire continuously for five successive days and nights without going out. Let us explain why the Favorite will save you full one-half in fuel bills and throw out more heat.

LUMBAGO

"Rheumatic Pains in the Loins and the Small of the Back."

Thus is described one of the most annoying, tho' not necessarily dangerous, forms of Rheumatism, by a great authority. He might have added, and such addition would have increased the value of his definition of Lumbago tenfold, that it can be eradicated from the system by the use of SULFOSOL—sulphur in solution. Whenever you feel those terrible Lumbago pains coming on take SULFOSOL quickly and faithfully. It will not only relieve the pains as promptly as any remedy can do so with safety, but it will eradicate the rheumatic tendency which is a constant menace to the comfort and activities of an otherwise normally well person.

AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

The Association's Chance.

The Rushville Retail Merchants Association has another opportunity to show the benefits to be derived from organization. The association has already accomplished much and by so doing has proved to itself that it can accomplish much more. The association, by unified effort and a goal common to all its members, has already done much for the good of Rushville and by doing more good only prepares itself for greater industrial battles to be fought in the future.

Public sentiment should crystallize in the association. It will meet tonight to consider the action of the council in refusing to furnish water to the Rushville Furniture Company for fire protection. It will represent public sentiment in the matter and by its proper action can materially assist in moulding public opinion.

There is little doubt in the minds of most business men that the council has acted unwisely in taking the step that it did Tuesday evening. It simply means the discouragement of the investment of local capital in Rushville and it means further that it would be difficult for the association to attempt to locate a factory in Rushville with such a precedent as the city council has attempted to establish. Surely factories are not going to seek sites in Rushville if they are to be hampered and tied down at every turn, especially when they can enter any adjoining city, or in fact, most any city in Indiana, with ease and every effort will be made to provide for their convenience. That is not taking into consideration that the Rushville Furniture Company is a company of local men using local capital to build up industrial Rushville. They should be given better treatment, even.

With all of these facts in mind the association should take drastic steps this evening to show the city council that the sentiment of the city demands that the council accord to local capitalists at least fair treatment. It should be the demand of the association that the council act, and that very soon, for it is the delay which is causing the greatest anxiety among the members of the company. Petitions have been prepared and will be presented at the meeting tonight. They will be circulated for signers to show the council just how the residents of Rushville feel in regard to the question. Surely the city council will not refuse to accede to the wishes of the city which it is so carefully governing, and in so doing, is foolish enough to set down a precedent that will drive away all chances for industrial growth of the city in the future.

It is up to the association to prove its worth at this time. It means something to every business man in Rushville. The association can do it because the association has already proved that it can do things and there are many fruits of its work in Rushville today which are mute evidence of its accomplishments.

Consider Rushville's plight as compared with other cities in this section of the State and in the near vicinity of Rushville. A company of Rushville men is organized and a modern factory building of which any city would be justly proud is built. Regardless of the fact that they are Rushville men and it is Rushville capital, they are hindered in every effort to proceed.

But what of the treatment other cities gives its industries. A party of New Castle's leading business men and capitalists were here the other evening. They are told of the plight in which the city council had placed the local organization. They laughingly remarked that New Castle would give them all the water they wanted at any point and free of charge if they would locate there. A Connersville man who is a home booster said one day recently after hearing the facts in the local case that Connersville would have given a free site and a $5,000 bonus for such a factory as Rushville is getting for nothing. He could not realize that the Rushville city council could be so short-sighted. In Shelbyville there are factories for a mile outside of the corporation line and the city is protecting them. Why? Because they are home industries and they should be protected. They help Shelbyville and why should not Shelbyville act decent about it and return the compliment.

And why should not Rushville do likewise by her industries?

Last night in speaking editorially of the refusal of the city council to furnish water to the Rushville Furniture Company for fire protection the Jacksonian said:

"That the city council should be commended for thus carefully watching and protecting the city's interests let all acknowledge, and if the factory can be admitted without injuring the substantial rights of the city as it seems it can, then we have little doubt but what the council will ultimately act favorably in the matter."

"Ultimately," that's the word exactly. It is on that word the whole question hinges. The company does not want the favorable answer of the council Christmas or next June; it wants it now. The members of the company desire to have the wheels turning by the first of December so that they may have their output on the market by January first, and make a bid for the spring trade. They had no idea that the council would act as it has else they would have made the request long ago. They did not know that to get the city to furnish water, and they pay taxes in return, would be like pulling teeth. Members of the council have said in the presence of the members of the company that there would be no difficulty over the matter of annexing the whole addition. And what is the reason?

Again the Jacksonian says: "To say that this addition was laid out to conform to the Belmont addition is a matter of no concern to the city council for the latter was never recognized by the city authorities as the land from which the Stewart & Tompkins addition was platted then lay between the city and Belmont as unplatted territory."

If the city council is to be commended for so carefully looking after the interests of the city as the Jacksonian suggests, it should be a matter of great concern to the city council. Had Stewart and Tompkins not platted the addition as they did, the streets would have ended in a lot in the Belmont addition or in other words would have had a dead end. In that case any person who might decide to live in Belmont will not find it necessary to travel several blocks to get to his home. As the plat is arranged now there is only a slight jog in Perkins street, the only street of any importance which runs from the city into the addition.

The English language is very expressive to say the least. Pretty soon we will be saying as "high as potatoes" instead of as high as Pike's Peak.

With old-fashioned suppers, a few old-fashioned girls ought to be rung in.

And in time we will doubtlessly be saying "as dear as sugar" instead of "as sweet."

But, Mayor Black's out of the city. Didn't you know that?

The New Castle Courier says that it takes more than handbills to make a sale and we agree.

We have seen the comet, Theopolis, and take it straight from us it is one large frost. They say it has a tail but that is denied by John Abercrombie and others. It is well up in the sky, about three blocks to your left as you pass Jupiter, we would judge. We read in the newspapers that it should be looked at with glasses. What kind of glasses we ask? That's important topic. Of course, there are some glasses, you know, which when converted to that use, would make you see a comet the size of the court house with a tail like a rainbow.

Some men expect considerable fuss on their birthday while others are satisfied with a pair of house slippers.

We received a communication the other day, the communicator asking if the number on the automobiles signified the number of mortgages on the auto. That was a pretty good joke back when auto numbers were first invented.

If for nothing else save this incident I was overjoyed and grateful for the pawpaws. It was good to see a fellow eating one, standing in a corner with a faraway look in his eyes, and know that he was living over again the happy hours of boyhood. Of course, some "poked a little fun" at them, but on a whole they were responsible for a mighty pleasant night in the office.

Rather odd thing happened, too. While the office was in the midst of the pawpaw fest I got word from the waiting room that a former Rushville man was there to see me. I went out and there was John Link, who is at the head of the chemical department in a big rubber works near here. I never heard of anyone back home that relished pawpaws more than his father, Lon Link, the banker, so I invited John to the repeat. But he promptly answered that pawpaw eating was one of the failings of his father that he never acquired.

It was good to see John again, for I had seen little of him since he was a small boy. Like the pawpaws revived memories for many of the other fellows, seeing John did the same for me. I recalled with keen delight the old fun at coasting we had as boys. And how John, who was the cock of the walk and high muckety-muck on the Link hill, would give the Catholic school boys "permission" to use "his hill" when coasting was good.

Believe me, Pawpaw Night in the New York Herald office will be long remembered, as it was a most unusual occasion and halted the machinery in an otherwise hustling and bustling place for nearly an hour, and more or less during the remainder of the night. I was relieved from regular duty for the night, and stood at the head of the crate of pawpaws delivering dozens of lectures and answering about "the habits and characteristics" of the species pawpaw—all of which I gleaned from an encyclopedia that night, as I never knew anything about pawpaws back home.

Here is a story that appeared in the Herald Wednesday:

One crate of pawpaws from Indiana arrived here yesterday, and several were carried into Broadway. The George Ade formula for obtaining a good pawpaw is to pursue it with a shotgun and not to shoot until it is poised in the crotch of a tree. Also there is a legend that some of the animals in the Hoosier State are inimical to this rare product, for it is recorded that the "possum punishes pawpaws plentifully."

This is the height of the season for the estimable pawpaw. It is a fruit which mellow with the frost. It looks like a link of bockwurst, tastes like a fond memory and when dissected resembles an over ripe banana stuffed with coat buttons. Straggling pawpaw trees are found in the eastern United States, but near those garden spots of the universe, Rushville, Ind., and Logan, O., where the hawk is eaten and the persimmon is tempered to ambrosial sweetness by the slinging frost, the pawpaw is the uncrowned king of the fruitaceous world.

Hence Broadway, whose taste is cloyed by peach Melba and by apple tart, scorn not these pawpaws which have come, but receive them as a benison from a noble land.

Third StreetCROQUET GAME,
SOCIETY EVENT

Return Contest Between Greenfield and Carthage is Signal For Appearance of Fair Sex.

HOME TEAM WINS TWO GAMES

Greenfield Players Admit They Are Beaten and Exhibit True Sportsmenlike Spirit.

The return game played between the Greenfield and Carthage Croquet Clubs at the latter's court there Wednesday night was made quite a social affair, says the Carthage Citizen. The Greenfield players brought their ladies and the wives and friends of the Carthage players were hostesses and invited a number of Carthage women to witness the games and meet the visitors.

Two games were played and won by the home club. In the first game, Dr. Carl McGaughey and Tom Morgan played J. C. Cox and J. Russell Publow, and in the second Horace Wilson and Sam Offutt made a desperate but unsuccessful effort to defeat R. C. Hill and Herbie Behr. The referees were Howard E. Henley and Van Hood. J. Russell Publow and Herbie Behr distinguished themselves by many successive sure plays. They became "rovers" and assisted their partners in finishing both games before their opponents had gained the middle arches.

The Greenfield players accepted defeat and the sport of their members in a gracious and jovial manner. They admitted that Carthage can outplay them but declared the social features more than atoned for whatever disappointment was occasioned by losing both games.

The court was in the best of order and brilliantly lighted. Several motor cars were parked on the west and north of the court and not only afforded good seats but the horns were effectively used in emphasizing weak or strong plays. Chairs were provided for the ladies and rows of interested spectators stood on all sides.

Following the games the members of the Carthage Club with their families entertained the visitors and a few friends at a two course luncheon at Kennedy's Cafe. There were about thirty in the company. The Greenfield party came in four motor cars, one of which was driven by Ed Toms, who owns a garage in that city. The party included Dr. and Mrs. Carl McGaughey, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Vard Fennell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Duncan, Sam Offutt and Miss Helen and Master Jack Morgan.

FROM THE SUBURBS.

Exactly.

Mr. Crane's talk about inebriety among college students gets nowhere. College men drink and college men abstain, as is the case with bricklayers, paragraphers, bartenders, artists and policemen. COURT BUSINESS LIGHT

Tarplee Divorce-Suit is Sent to Shelby by Circuit Court.

Little business was transacted in the circuit court today. The case of Leona H. Binford against Richard H. Harter on a note demanding $200 was dismissed by the court for cause. The divorce suit of James H. Tarplee against Esther Tarplee was sent to Shelbyville on a change of venue. The motion for a change was made by the defendant. The note suit of the G. W. Kennedy Milling Company against John A. Redenbaugh, demanding $75, was dismissed and the costs adjudged against the plaintiff. The plaintiff filed the motion for dismissal.

BEFORE PARDON BOARD.

Lieut. Gov. Frank J. Hall appeared before the State Board of Pardons yesterday in behalf of James Pea, who is now serving a sentence of from two to fourteen years in the Jeffersonville reformatory for shooting at his half-brother, Charles Bell. The decision of the board will not be made known until next Tuesday or Wednesday.

BIBLE CONTEST TO START SOON

"Suggestive Questions on the Sunday School Lesson" Now Appearing in the Daily Republican.

GOLD MEDALS AS THE PRIZES

Questions Based on Bible Lessons and Cover All-Round Needs of Human Nature.

The Daily Republican calls the attention of its readers to the "Suggestive Questions on the Sunday School Lesson" in this issue. They only need to be read to be appreciated, and if read carefully, comparing the questions with the Scripture upon which they are based, they will not fail to impress the reader with their great significance.

These questions are inspiring sermons, addresses and newspaper articles in hundreds of towns; they are a stimulus and help to thousands of Bible class teachers and students. The map on the street reads and discusses them with his chum; they are read in the homes of people and afford interesting subjects for profitable discussion. Almost any one question will suggest as much thought to the average reader as would take a newspaper column to express and the thought will be his own.

The questions are not dry tomes, they are fresh, interesting and suggestive, and one can learn from them, by way of suggestion, more than by reading an entire magazine devoted to the philosophy of every-day life.

These questions cover the all-round needs of human nature, while they are a wonderful help in elucidating and enforcing the Bible lesson upon which they are based.

Don't fail to read them from now on, and be ready to start in the easy Bible contest which is to commence in a few weeks, and thus you may hope to win one of the beautiful gold medals.

SUPPORT SUIT STILL PENDING

Divorce Complaint is Not First Case Florence Pelham Ever Filed Against Husband.

PELHAM IS IN SHELBYVILLE

Married life with Mrs. Florence E. Pelham, wife of Frank Pelham of this city, was not what it was thought to be, and Mrs. Pelham has brought suit for divorce in the Fayette circuit court from her husband, says the Shelbyville Republican. Mr. Pelham married the young woman while he was working in Glenwood, Rush county, about a year ago, and while she was yet in her teens. He left that place and came to this city, where his wife joined him in a few days. Then they went to Martinsville, where they remained a short time.

They returned to Shelbyville and Mr. Pelham later went to New Castle. Then the separation came. The divorce complaint filed mentions a well known young woman of this city. Mr. Pelham is employed in Shelbyville again. According to the court docket, there is a suit still pending which was brought by his wife for support. This case was brought by his wife last March, but it is thought that that matter has been settled since court adjourned, but it has never been wiped from the docket.

AMUSEMENTS

The Palace will have a varied program tonight showing a comedy and a drama. "Mr. Peck Goes Calling" is a Biograph comedy telling how Mr. Peck is mistaken for a burglar. Mr. Peck is the victim of circumstances, but has a hard time convincing his wife. "The Knight Errant" is a Selig drama of the Crusades.

The Portola will have a feature program tonight and tomorrow night, showing three reels of pictures. "The Switchman's Tower" is an Edison film telling a thrilling railroad story. The Second is a Pathe, "The Coronation of King George V." It shows the events of the coronation and is instructive as well as interesting. The last film is a Lubin entitled "An Indian's Appreciation." It is said to be a sensational western drama and is very realistic.

Grace George and the New York Playhouse Company will begin a three days' engagement at the Shubert Murat, Indianapolis, Monday, October 2. Monday, Wednesday and Wednesday Matinee the five-act, Shakespearian comedy, "Much Ado About Nothing" will be given with a sumptuousness and precision of detail that has never before been attempted.

Miss George will be seen in the character of Beatrice, the youngest star that has attained this distinction. Her training and study has been along these lines for several years, and she will undoubtedly make an impression in the madcap character of Beatrice that will be remembered as long as theaters invites attention. On Tuesday evening one performance of "Just to Get Married" will be given. The authoress, Cicely Hamilton, has taken the theme of Marriage of Convenience and has woven around it a dialogue that is full of sharp and witty sayings and contains as one may judge from the title, many amusing scenes and ludicrous situations. After two weeks more on the road, Miss George and the Playhouse Company will return to New York and enter a season of elaborate repertoire that Mr. Brady has made out for her and her company at the Playhouse. The company here will be the original one and includes the famous English actor, Lyn Harding. Others in this important cast are: Jane Coreoran, Owen Baxter, Kenneth Hunter, John May, Mona Morgan, Ernest Chester, John Cromwell, and others.

The title of William Faversham's new play, "The Faun," by Edward Knoblauch, which he will present at the Shubert Murat Theater, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, October 5, 6, 7, is as novel as the story or theme of the drama. In this play

Mr. Faversham will impersonate a faun, the son of Pan—something new to the stage. The faun is a deity of the woods and herds,— the god of the shepherd. He is supposed to be half-human, with pointed ears, short horns and goat's feet. The faun in Mr. Knoblauch's comedy is discovered bathing in a fountain in the garden of a London house. He is at first thought to be a tramp, but on examination he is discovered to be a mythological creature of the woods. He proves so out of the ordinary that he is given modern clothes to wear and so habilitated becomes a member of the household and is thus given an opportunity to become a member of our work-a-day life. Beginning with this unique dramatic device the dramatist has provided a story of extraordinary interest and charm. Mr. Faversham has a fine company, of which Julie Opp is the leading lady.

When with sparkling eyes Lady Galorey raved about "Mandalay," Dan listened with eagerness. Everybody seemed to know all about Letty Lane, but he alone knew from what town she had come!

They went for supper at the Carlton after the theater.

"Letty," Lady Galorey said, "tells it herself how the impresario heard her sing in some country church—picked her up then and there and brought her over here, and they say she married him."

Dan Blair could have told them how she had sung in that little church that day. Dan was eating his caviare sandwich. "Her name then was Sally Towney," he murmured. How little he had guessed that she was singing herself right out of that church and into the London Gaiety Theater! Anyway, she had made him "sit up!" It was a far cry from Montana to the London Gaiety. And so she married the greasy Jew who had discovered her!

Dan glanced over at the Duchess of Breakwater. She was looking well, exquisitely high bred, and she impressed him. She leaned slightly over to him, laughing. He had hardly dared to meet her eyes that day, fearing that she might read his secret. She had told him that in her own right she was a countess—the Countess of Stalner. Titles didn't cut any ice with him. At any rate, she would be able to "buy back the old farm"—that is the way Dan put it. She had told him of the beautiful old Stalner Court, mortgaged and hung up with debts, as deep in ruins as the ivy was thick on the walls.

As Dan looked over at the duchess he saw the other people staring and looking about at a table near. It was spread a little to their left for four people, a great bouquet of orchids in the center.

"There," Galorey said, "there's Letty Lane." And the singer came in, followed by three men, the first of them the Prince Poniatowsky, indolent, bored, haughty, his eye-glass dangling. Miss Lane was dressed in black, a superb costume of faultless cut, and it enfolded her like a shadow; as a shadow might enfold a specter, for the dancer was as pale as the dead. She had neither painted nor rouged, she had evidently employed no coquetry to disguise her face; rather she seemed to be on the verge of a serious illness, and presented a striking contrast to the brilliant creature, who had shone before their eyes not an hour before. Her dress was a challenge to the more gay and delicate affairs the other women in the restaurant wore. The gown came severely up to her chin. Its high collar closed around with a pearl necklace; from her ears fell pearls, long, creamy and priceless. She wore a great feathered hat, which, drooping, almost hid her small, pale face and her golden hair. She drew off her gloves as she came in and her white, jeweled hands flashed. She looked infinitely tired and extremely bored. As soon as she took her seat at the table intended for her party, Poniatowsky poured her out a glass of champagne, which she drank off as though it were water.

"Gad," Lord Galorey said, "she is a stunner! What a figure, and what a head, and what daring to dress like that!"

"She knows how to make herself conspicuous," said the Duchess of Breakwater.

"She looks extremely ill," said Lady Galorey. "The pace she goes will do her up in a year or two."

Dan Blair had his back to her, and when they rose to leave he saw the last to pass out. Letty Lane saw him, and a light broke over her pallid face. She nodded and smiled and shook her hand in a pretty little salute. If her face was pale, her lips were red, and her smile was like sunlight; and at her recognition a wave of friendly fellowship swept over the young man—a sort of loyal kinship to her which he hadn't felt for any other women there, and which he could not have explained. In warm approval of the actress' distinction, he said softly to himself: "That's all right—she makes the rest of them look like thirty cents."

CHAPTER VI.

Galorey Seeks Advice.

Blair did not go back at once to Osdene Park. He stopped over in London for a few days to see Joshua Ruggles, and so remarked for the first time the difference between the speech of the old and the new world. Mr. Ruggles spoke broadly, with complete disregard of the frills and adornments of the King's English. He spoke United States of the pure, broad, western brand, and it rang out, it vibrated and swelled and rolled, and as Ruggles didn't care who heard him, nothing of what he had to say was lost.

FOR INDIGESTION Bad Dreams, Nervousness, Biliousness, and all Stomach Misery.

Go to F. B. Johnson & Co. today don't procrastinate—get a fifty cent box of MI-O-NA stomach tablets and get rid of all that annoying gas, sourness, heartburn, bloating and heaviness, they guarantee them.

There wouldn't be so many deaths from acute indigestion if sufferers would constantly carry a few MI-O-NA tablets with them.

Read this from a man 64 years old and then decide whether you prefer to suffer longer or not.

"I am on my second box of MI-O-NA. I received relief after taking two doses. I feel like a different man. I am 64 years old and MI-O-NA is the best thing I ever used for stomach trouble."—J. M. Burger, R. F. D. No. 3, Box 58, Wooster, Ohio. Fifty cents for a large box of stomach tablets at F. B. Johnson & Co. and druggists everywhere.

Old Mr. Blair had left behind him a comrade, and as far as advice could go the old man knew that his Dan would not be bankrupt.

"Advice," Dan Blair senior once said to his boy, "is the kind of thing we want some fellow to give us when we ain't going to do the thing we ought to do, or are a little ashamed of something we have done. It's an awful good way to get cured of asking advice just to do what the fellow tells you to at once."

During Ruggles' stay in London the young fellow looked to it that Ruggles saw the sights, and the two did the principal features of the big town, to the rich enjoyment of the Westerner. Dan took his friend every night to the play, and on the fourth evening Ruggles said: "Let's go to the circus or a yawdeville, Dan. I have learned this show by heart!" They had been every night to see "Mandalay."

"Oh, you go on where you like, Josh," the boy answered. "I'm going to see how she looks from the pit."

Ruggles was not a Blairtown man. He had come from farther west, and had never heard anything of Sarah Towney or Letty Lane. He applauded the actress vigorously at the Gaiety at first, and after the third night slept through most of the performance. When he waked up he tried to discover what attraction Letty Lane had for Dan. For the young man never left Ruggles' side, never went behind the scenes, though he seemed absorbed, as a man usually is absorbed for one reason only.

In response to a telegram from Osdene Park, Dan motored out there one afternoon, and during his absence Ruggles was surprised at his hotel by a call.

"My dear Mr. Ruggles," Lord Galorey said, for he it was the page boy fetched up, "why don't you come out to see us? All friends of old Mr. Blair's are welcome at Osdene."

Ruggles thanked Galorey and said he was not a visiting man, that he only had a short time in London, and was going to Ireland to look up "his family tree."

"There are one hundred acres of trees in Osdene," laughed Galorey; "you can climb them all." And Ruggles replied:

"I guess I wouldn't find any O'Shaughnessy Ruggles at the top of any of 'em, my lord. The boy has gone out to see you all today."

Galorey nodded. "That is just why I toddled in to see you!"

Ruggles' caller had been shown to the sitting room, where he and Dan hobnobbed and smoked during the Westerner's visit. There was a pile of papers on the table, in one corner a typewriter covered by a black cloth. Galorey took a chair and, refusing a cigarette, lit his pipe.

"I didn't have the pleasure of meeting you in the West when I was out there with Blair. I knew Dan's father rather well."

Ruggles responded: "I knew him rather well, too, for thirty years. If," he went on, "Blair hadn't known you pretty well he wouldn't have sent the boy out to you as he has done. He was keen on every trail. I might say that he had been over every one of 'em like a hound before he set the boy loose."

Galorey answered, "Quite so," gravely. "I know it. I knew it when Dan turned up at Osdene." Holding his pipe bowl in the palm of his slender hand, he smoked meditatively. He hadn't thought about things, as he had been doing lately, for many years. His sense of honor was the strongest thing in Gordon Galorey, the only thing in him, perhaps, that had been left unsmirched by the touch of the world. He was unquestionably a gentleman.

"Blair, however," he said, "wasn't as keen on this scent as you'd expect. His intuition was wrong."

Ruggles raised his eyebrows slightly.

"I mean to say," Lord Galorey went on, "that he knew me in the West when I had cut loose for a few blessed months from just these things into which he has sent his boy—from what, if I had a son, God knows I'd throw him as far as I could."

"Blair wanted Dan to see the world."

"Of course, that is right enough. We all have to see it, I fancy, but this boy isn't ready to look at it."

"He is twenty-two," Ruggles returned. "When I was his age I was supporting four people."

Galorey went on: "Osdene Park at present isn't the window for Blair's boy to see life through, and that is what I have come up to London to talk to you about, Mr. Ruggles. I should like to have you take him away."

"What's Dan been up to down there?"

"Nothing as yet, but he is in the pocket of a woman—he is in a nest of women."

Ruggles' broad face had not altered its expression of quiet expectation.

"There's a lot of 'em down there?" he asked.

"There are two," Galorey said briefly, "and one of them is my wife."

Ruggles turned his cigarette between his great fingers. He was a slow thinker. He had none of old Blair's keenness, but he had other

"That is just why I toddled in to see you."

qualities. Galorey saw that he had not been quite understood, and he waited and then said:

"Lady Galorey is like the rest of modern wives, and I am like a lot of modern husbands. We each go our own way. My way is a worthless one, God knows I don't stand up for it, but it is not my wife's way in any sense of the word."

"Does she want Dan to go along on her road?" Ruggles asked. "And how far?"

"We are financially strapped just now," said Galorey calmly, "and she has got money from the boy." He didn't remove his pipe from his mouth; still holding it between his teeth he put his hand in his pocket, took out his wallet, drew forth four checks and laid them down before Ruggles. "It is quite a sum," Galorey noted, "sufficient to do a lot to Osdene Park in the way of needed repairs." Ruggles had never seen a simile such as curved his companion's lips. "But Osdene Park will have to be repaired by money from some other source."

Ruggles wondered how the husband had got hold of the checks, but he didn't ask and he did not look at the papers.

"When Dan came to the Park," said Galorey, "I stopped bridge playing, but this more than takes its place!"

Ruggles' big hand went slowly toward the checks; he touched them with his fingers and said: "Is Dan in love with your wife?"

And Lord Galorey laughed and said: "Lord no, my dear man, not even that! It is pure good nature on his part—mere prodigality. Edith appealed to him, that's all."

Relief crossed Ruggles' face. He understood in a flash the worldly appeal to the rich young man and believed the story the husband told him.

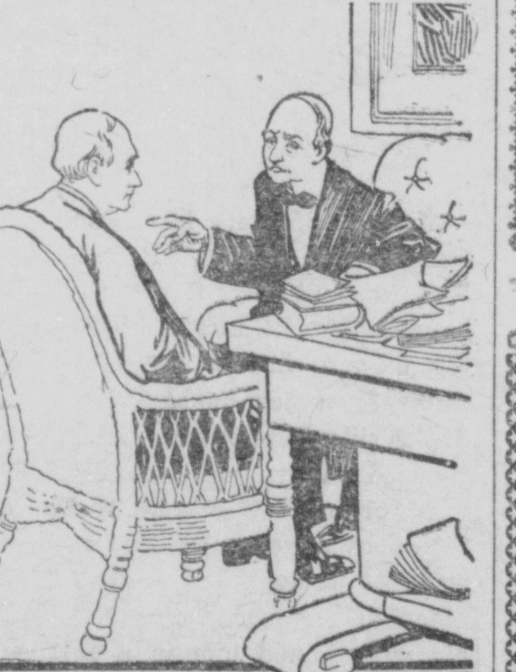

"Have you spoken to the boy?"

"My dear chap, I have spoken to him about nothing. I preferred to come to you."

"You said," Ruggles continued, "there were two ladies down to your place."

Galorey had refilled his pipe and held it as before in the palm of his hand.

"I can look after the affairs of my wife, and this shan't happen again, I promise you—not at Osdene, but I'm afraid I can't do much in the other hand."

"She is aiming at ten million pounds."

case. The Duchess of Breakwater has been at Osdene for nearly three weeks, and Dan is in love with her."

Ruggles put the four checks one on top of the other.

"Is the lady a widow?"

"Unfortunately, yes."

"So that's the nest Dan has got into at Osdene," the Westerner said. And Galorey answered: "That is the nest."

"And he has gone out there today—got a wire this morning."

"The duchess has been in an awful funk," said Galorey, "because Dan's been stopping in London so long. She sent him a message, and as soon as Dan wired back that he was coming to the Park, I decided to come here and see you."

Lesson I.—Fourth Quarter, For Oct. 1, 1911.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Ezek. iii, 12-21. Memory Verses, 17-19—Golden Text, Ezek. iii, 17—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

It is most helpful to consider these men who were truly sent of God and who faithfully delivered His messages. The heart of all their messages was the one to whom they all bare witness (Acts x, 43); the one whom Ezekiel saw as a man upon a throne (i, 26); the one for whom the throne of David still waits, who will be King over all the earth and rule the world in righteousness (Luke i, 32, 33; Zech. xiv, 9).

Ezekiel was one of the captives in Babylon, and, like Daniel, he was there for his own good and the good of others (Jer. xxiv, 5), that he might turn the people to God. The hand of the Lord was specially upon him, as it is said at least seven times (i, 3; iii, 14, 22; viii, 1; xxxiii, 22; xxxvii, 1; xl, 1), and by the Spirit of the Lord he saw visions of God, heavenly things as in chapter i, and things at Jerusalem on earth as in chapter viii, things then taking place or about to take place as in chapter xli, and things yet future as in chapter xxxvii.

When we have become children of God by receiving the Lord Jesus Christ there is nothing we need so much as to be filled with the Holy Spirit and have the hand of God upon us, controlling, guiding, working. If we are in His hand for His pleasure, inasmuch as the pleasure of the Lord shall prosper in His hand (Isa. lvi, 10) it will prosper through us if we are only willing and obedient.

The aim of every believer who is right with God must be the glory of God, that God in all things may be glorified and the time of His kingdom hastened (1 Pet. iv, 11, 13; v, 70). In chapter i the prophet saw the likeness of the glory of the Lord in the cloud, and fire and brightness, and the living creatures, and the wheels and the throne over all with the man upon it (chapter i, 3; xvi, 28). In chapter x, 20 he tells us that he knew the living creatures were the cherubim, and I believe that Adam and Eve and the antediluvian believers saw in the cherubim in Eden symbols of what redeemed ones shall be in the kingdom.

Before it is time to teach this lesson I hope to have ready a booklet on "The Cherubim." It is only as we are filled with visions of God and glory that we can be His faithful witnesses here in this ungodly world. There is rebellion against God on every side as truly as in the days of Ezekiel (chapters ii, 3-8; iii, 7), and the word of truth is not popular. It is even according to Isa. xxx, 9-11, but if Spirit filled and be- holding the glory we shall not be moved by what we see and hear all about us.

As the Lord's messenger or watch- man Ezekiel was to hear the word at His mouth and give them warning from Him (verse 17). His orders were: "Speak My words unto them whether they will hear or whether they will forbear." "Eat this roll and go speak unto the house of Israel." "Speak with My words unto them." All My words receive in thine heart and go and tell them, thus saith the Lord God (ii, 7; iii, 1, 4, 10, 11). The messenger of the Lord must never get up his own mes- sage nor speak from his own heart merely, but he must eat the words of the Lord according to this lesson and Jer. xv, 16; Rev. x, 8-11. Like this prophet and John in Patmos, we will find the word sweet to our taste, but afterward bitter (iii, 3, 14), for there will be an opposition to it on the part of many which will enable us to sym- pathize with Jeremiah in his experi- ence of chapter xx, 8-10. May there also be in us such a burning that we cannot but speak the words of truth, however much we may be tempted not to do so (Acts iv, 20).

The prophet's seven days' astonish- ment (verse 15) reminds us of Job's friends who sat with him seven days and nights without speaking a word (Job ii, 13) and of the words of Ps. xxxix, 9, "I was dumb, I opened not my mouth because Thou didst it." Concerning verses 15 to 21 of our les- son compare chapters xxxiii, 7-14, and note Prov. xxiv, 11, 12, and see our re- sponsibility to give to others the glad tidings which are for all people. We are put in trust with the gospel and are debtors to all who have never heard, and we will be greatly ashamed in that day if we have been unfaith- ful to our trust (1 Thess. ii, 4; Rom. i, 14-16; 1 John ii, 28). It was one who belonged to the wicked one who said, "Am I my brother's keeper?" (1 John iii, 12), and we must be careful lest while professedly Christians we act as if we cared not if others per- ish. Concerning the words "iniquity" and "righteousness" in the lesson pa- ragraph we are considering, we must remember that "all our righteousness- es are as filthy rags" (Isa. lxiv, 6), and apart from the righteousness of God in Christ, which becomes ours when we receive Him, there is none that will stand (II Cor. v, 21; 1 Cor. i, 30; Rom. x, 3, 4).

From lesson verses 22, 23, we learn that we must be where God wants us in order to hear His voice. "Arise, go forth into the plain, and I will there talk with thee." "Arise and go down to the potter's house, and there I will cause thee to hear my words" (Jer. xviii, 2). Obedience is everything, whether the word is "Go forth" or "Go shut thyself within thine house" (verse 24), whether He says "Be dumb" or "Open thy mouth" (verses 26, 27).

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Oct. 1, 1911.

Topic.—Lessons from great lives.—X. Peter.—John xxi, 1-19. (Consecration meet- ing.) Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

Simon Peter, one of the leading apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ, was the son of a man named Jonas, a fish- man by occupation, and the son was brought up in the same business. His partners in the fishing trade were his brother Andrew and James and John. All four seem to have been men of means and standing, and their asso- ciation was not limited to their busi- ness partnership. They were partners also in the search for truth, and, later on in their devoted service of Christ and as fishers of men, Andrew led his brother Simon to Christ, and the world has seldom seen a better illustration of the tremendous consequences that may follow the bringing of a single soul to Christ.

Called to be an apostle when he was probably between thirty and forty years of age, he served his Master with manifestations of alternating strength and weakness until Pente- cost, after which his zeal was unend- ing and his courage unassailable. Peter died as a martyr to his faith. The circumstances surrounding his mar- tyrdom are unknown. Tradition tells us that he died about A. D. 67 or 68, at the time of the persecutions of Nero. He was crucified, and, Origen says, with his head downward at his own request, because he felt himself un- worthy to be put to death in the same manner as his Master. What devotion and love and yet how characteristic of the great apostle, whose life should be both a warning and an inspiration to all disciples of Christ.

The incident selected for our spe- cial study gives us a threefold view of the apostle, which may direct us in our review of his life and character.

I. The leading characteristics of the apostle himself are set forth. 1. Peter, as no other apostle was the representa- tive of them all. His name comes first in the list of the apostles here given and undoubtedly Christ gave to him first place as related to the others. He was their spokesman and Chris- accepted him as such. 2. Peter was the natural leader among the twelve. Peter decided, Peter led the way and the others followed, and throughout the early history of the church he was its greatest leader. 3. Peter repre- sents Christian activity. When Jesus appeared John recognized him first, but it was Peter who first cast him- self into the sea to go to Christ. In the race between Peter and John to the tomb of Christ, John outran his older companion, but he stood without, and it was Peter who first entered the tomb. Peter was always zealous and aggressive, and his example should stir us to Christian zeal.

II. Peter and John. In this incident we have a most complete picture of the companionship that existed be- tween Peter and John. How each sup-plemented the character of the other is seen at the appearance of Christ and Peter's anxious inquiry, "Lord, what shall this man do?" shows his deep interest in the future welfare and work of John. The friendship be- gun in early life continued, and the history of the church contains no more beautiful illustration of companionship and co-operation in the service of Christ than is to be seen in the re- lationship that existed between Peter and John.

III. Peter and Christ. The devoted love of Simon Peter for his blessed Lord and Master is nowhere more abundantly manifested than in this post resurrection scene. His thrice repeated avowals of love, and the last with that characteristic abandon- ment to impulsiveness when he said, "Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love Thee," will ever stand as a testimony of the attitude of his heart and mind toward Christ. On the other hand, Christ's forgiveness of Peter and the recommitment of him as an apostle prove the stability of His love for His wayward yet repen- tant disciple and His appreciation of his true character and worth. More- over, in this attitude of Christ toward Peter we see the Master's attitude to- ward all men.

Simon Peter was above all things a true man. He was bold, courageous, impulsive, yet loving and tender even to tears. His Christian manliness should fire the imagination of every young disciple of Christ, and inspire in all a desire to emulate it in the true spirit of Christ.

Christian Endeavor

NOT A "SPRINTER."

The Christian Endeavor so- ciety is not a "sprinter" that can make a hundred yard dash and beat all competitors; it is a steady going, summer and win- ter, day in and day out society. It was established for constant service, not for a spurt nor for a few extra galvanic twitches of life once in awhile. The test of any society is not what it does once in a great while, but what it does fifty-two weeks of the year.—Francis E. Clark.

Golden Text—Hear the word at my mouth, and give them warning from me. Ezek. iii, 17.

(1.) Verses 1-3—What is it that is to the soul like food is to the body?

(2.) Do men get, in these days special messages from God as Ezekiel did? If so specify.

(3.) What is the immediate effect upon us of new knowledge?

(4.) Verses 4-7—Which are most susceptible to the claims of the gos- pel, a people who have rarely heard it preached, or those who are con- stantly hearing it? Give your reasons.

(5.) What is the effect of preaching the gospel upon those who reject it?

(6.) Verses 8-11—Is it always true, that we have sufficient strength to do the work to which God appoints us? Give your reasons.

(7.) Does God know in advance, "whether they will hear or whether they will forbear," when he sends a message to a people? Why or why not?

(8.) If our hearts fail us in the difficulties of our God-appointed work, how much are we to be blamed?

(9.) Verses 12-14—When we are "bitter," or angry, or even sorry to carry out the work to which we are appointed, what attitude does God likely take to us?

(10.) May we make every work, no matter how hard or disagreeable, a joy, or does God know and expect that we shall sometimes be sad?

(11.) When we do God's work against our will, or inclination, are we praised or blamed by Him?

(12.) Verses 15-17—Is it either es- sential or an advantage in order to get best results, for missionaries to dwell among the people to whom sent and become a part and parcel of them?

(13.) When we are appointed by God to do a thing, should we sit around and wait for special inspira- tion, or start right at the work, and expect all essential help?

(14.) Verses 18-19—How can we justify God in making the salvation of a sinner depend upon the warning of a man?

(15.) What is the guilt, and what will be the punishment of a man whose failure to warn, is the means of a sinner dying in his sins?

(16.) If a Christian refuses, or neg- lects, to give to his utmost ability, to the missionary cause, will he be ad- judged guilty before God for those who could have been converted through the influence of the money he might have given?

(17.) Verses 20-21—To what extent are we guilty for the backslidden state of so many members of the church? (This is one of the questions that may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(18.) How is it that some who were really earnest Christians, lapse into a sinful life?

(19.) Verses 22-27—Which person gets more revelations from God, the one that gives himself up to contem- plation chiefly, or the one who is in the thick of the fight for God?

WIELDS KNIFE; WOUNDS RIVAL

Knightstown Girl, 18 Years Old, Cuts

Bertha Aldridge, While Two

Return From Work.

IS DISFIGURED FOR LIFE

Employee of Knightstown Canning

Factory Quarrel Over Dan Collins of That Place.

Bertha Aldridge, aged about eighteen years, was cut across the forehead and will be disfigured for life when another young woman named Shafer, about the same age, wielded a knife as they were returning from work at the canning factory in Knightstown, where both are employed, about six o'clock Wednesday evening.

The knife used by Miss Shafer on Miss Aldridge was one that is commonly used in canning factories in peeling tomatoes and it made a gash five inches across the forehead of the young woman on which it was used. Mrs. Aldridge was taken to the office of Dr. George Smith where the cut, which laid open the flesh to the skull, was sewed up, seven stitches being necessary. She is suffering much pain today and will recover in a few days but will be disfigured for life.

The young women are alleged to have quarrelled over a young man, whose name is said to be Dan Collins of Knightstown, and for whom both are said to have had a more than friendly feeling. It is believed that Miss Shafer intended to disfigure the face of her rival for the affections of Collins and consequently slashed her across the forehead where an ugly scar is assured which cannot be hid in dressing her hair.

As stated above the two young women were returning from the canning factory where both are employed and got into a quarrel. It waxed hot, it is said, and Miss Shafer attacked her rival with the knife that she carried with her.

After the cutting the marshal was notified and went in search of Miss Shafer, but she had boarded a north bound Big Four train as soon as possible and left town, presumably for Anderson, and has not been seen in Knightstown since. The police department at Anderson was instructed to be on the lookout for her, as it is believed she would leave the train at that point.

KONCERT TICKETS ON SALE

Second Rehearsal Will be Held Tonight in Court House.

The second rehearsal for the "Old Folks Koncert" will be held tonight in the assembly room of the court house and it is the hope of the promoters to have everyone present who will participate. The date of the concert is October 9 and it will mean several hours of hard work each day from now on if the concert is to be a success. The tickets for the concert were put on sale today and are being taken very rapidly, showing that the general public is interested in the venture.

EXPIRES AFTER A LONG ILLNESS

Local Relatives Receive News of Demise of Mrs. Minerva Lawrence in Larned, Kansas.

WAS BORN AND REARED HERE

Word was received here last evening that Mrs. Minerva Lawrence, eighty years old, formerly a resident of this city, had died at her home in Larned, Kansas, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Lawrence has been in poor health for some time and her demise had been expected for the last few days. She was born in this city October fourth, 1831 and resided here for a number of years. She was married to Frederick Lawrence on January 12, 1882 in Larned, Kansas, where she spent the remainder of her life. Mrs. Lawrence has visited here often. She was a sister of the late Charles Sherman and has a number of relatives in this city.
